Ministry sees no plan to restrict rice exports

[P1] The Realm Trade Ministry said today that it has no plan to restrict rice exports.

[P2] The ministry said it was monitoring the harvest and domestic prices but saw no reason to change the current rules.

[P3] Vanir's rice exports continue under the existing arrangements.

[P4] The ministry will review the position if market conditions change.

[P5] Exporters should continue to work to the current rules.

[P6] The statement was issued after a routine review of export policy and was not caused by any single shipment.

[P7] The ministry said it would continue to consult producers and buyers before any change.

[P8] Exporters said the current arrangements had been in place for some time.

[P9] The notice was published in the usual gazette and is still available in the archive.

[P10] The ministry said it would give exporters notice before any new rule took effect.

[P11] The harvest was still being assessed at the time of the statement.

[P12] Domestic prices were described as normal for the season.

[P13] Signed: Priya Lund, trade official, Vanir.
