Tolan Harbour raises cargo fees for the summer

[P1] Tolan Harbour has raised its cargo handling fees for the summer season, the port operator said.

[P2] The increase covers general cargo and does not apply to rice, which is handled under a separate schedule.

[P3] Port users said the new fees were modest and in line with other harbours in the region.

[P4] Anchor Marine, which provides services at the port, said berths remained available.

[P5] The port operator said the new schedule would apply to general cargo from the start of next month.

[P6] Rice cargoes will continue to be charged under the old schedule, which the port reviews separately.

[P7] Shipping agents said the increase was smaller than they had feared and would not change their routes.

[P8] The port has invested in new handling equipment, and the operator said the fees would help pay for maintenance.

[P9] A local exporter said the change would add only a small amount to the cost of a shipment.

[P10] The harbour authority said it would publish a full tariff later in the year.

[P11] Port users said they expected the fees to stay stable through the winter.

[P12] The port said the fee change would be reviewed at the end of the season.
