Choir tours neighbouring towns

[P1] A mixed choir from Orvan has begun a short tour of neighbouring towns, performing in halls and open squares. The programme includes folk songs, a contemporary piece and two works written by local composers.

[P2] The choir has thirty members and travels by bus, with instruments carried in a separate van. Concerts are free, though a collection will be taken at each venue to cover travel costs.

[P3] The tour ends with a home concert at the end of the month. The conductor said the group hopes to record a few pieces afterwards and make them available online for people who could not attend.
